

Wi-SKY Inflight Investor Update

January 25, 2010

A few questions have arisen recently about the declining value of the Wi-SKY Inflight stock. The basic reason is because there are more sellers than buyers. The follow-on question is "Who are the sellers?" The most likely answer is that it is people who got really cheap stock a long time ago and are dumping at the first chance they get.

The second follow-on question is "Why are there not more buyers?" One answer is that we are unknown in the market and the stock promotion activity we thought we had lined up failed to materialize (we will address this failure at a later date). Another answer is that the events to trigger interest in the stock have been delayed longer than we anticipated.

To address the occurrence of external events that will impact the stock, let me reiterate the information contained in the last two press releases posted on the web site. I encourage all shareholders to re-read

WI-SKY INFLIGHT PROGRESSES TOWARD FIRST DEPLOYMENT ON COMMERCIAL AIRCRAFT

This report is closer to reality today than it was when issued back in December. We continue to make progress with our launch airline customer. We are having weekly project planning meetings. We are having monthly business strategy meetings. One day the news will break, and the stock will respond.

I have also attached another recent press release that has applicability to the value of the company. This makes us unique among all other aircraft data link providers. This makes every airline a prospective customer, especially those that are using a slow data link for inflight entertainment from an obsolete IFE technology.

IMPROVED AIRLINE SAFETY IS ON THE HORIZON

Additionally, there are 5 upcoming potential announcements that may have an impact the price of the stock:

1. A possible strategic investor who will be our radio manufacturer
2. Investment from credible European small cap fund managers
3. A soon-to-be announced major airline LOI
4. Our radio going to the FCC and FAA for certifications
5. A soon-to-be announced strategic relationship with a major airline IT provider

These items are currently in discussion and may occur within the near term.

This is an excellent opportunity for investors to buy Wi-SKY Inflight shares. We have private placement shares available for those who may be interested. Wise investors buy the rumor and sell the news.

When the news breaks, the price jump happens so fast it may be too late to get in on the bargain prices we are now experiencing.

Thank you for your continued support and encouragement. These are long hard days for your executive team until we can hire the personnel needed to help in the project. Just a little more patience and I think we will all be pleased with what the company has accomplished to date.

Best regards to all,

M. Grant Sharp
President and CEO
